ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for improving branch prediction, the method including determining a target of a branch instruction; storing the target of the branch instruction before the branch instruction is fully executed; and re-encountering the branch instruction and predicting a target for the branch instruction by accessing the stored target for the branch instruction.